When plotting the data in a T-SNE plot, there is significant differences between this one and the PCA plot. The main difference noticed is that the T-SNE plot is entirily clustered compared to the PCA plot that, while it had clusters, it also had some data that was spread out compared to others. This shows that, in terms of similarity, the data is very similar in most aspects to the point that there's virtually no differences between them.